

LOCKED CHEST

Through your family grapevine, you heard a rumor that your great-grandfather Nicolas used to be a famous magician. Your parents mention that there's an old chest of his in their attic that they've never been able to open which might give more information about his mysterious past. Supposedly the chest displays a hint about how to unlock it.

When you find the chest, you notice an odd padlock on the front: eight wheels that spin through the alphabet as you turn them. There's also a ring on top with ten letters along the perimeter, and three discs made out of some sort of dark metal. You run your fingers along the discs and discover that they detach from the chest and appear to be the same size as the ring. What's the password to the padlock?
