

Night falls on the farm, and everyone gathers around the fire for an evening of spooky tales. Unfortunately, one old ghost has had a bit too much to drink and has pretty much commandeered the show. Every so often, in place of a word, it screams out a sound-alike scary word that really gives everyone the creeps. They all beg the old ghost to stop, but it just holds up its crooked index finger as if to say “This ghost completes what it starts...” Eventually, the bartender decides to cut off the ghost. What do they say to it?

The ghost family was ready for their end-of-October haunting of all the farms in the area. After _____ down a big bag of _____-olate candy she stole from some trick-or-treaters, Dybbuk, the Mom ghost, _____-strated proper scaring technique to her brother Gomez, who’d just recently joined the undead family. Casper, the Dad ghost, then pulled the family car around, and Dybbuk and Gomez hopped in. Casper gently _____-ed to a stop in front of the day _____ center, and they picked up their youngest ghostling, Beetlejuice. Dybbuk and Gomez started to bicker about something, but Casper inter-_____. “Now we’ll _____ down to Graves Middle School to pick up our sweet little Adelaide,” he cackled. But Casper _____ too soon: for the car ran over some jagged bones and got a flat tire.

After fixing the flat, and picking up Adelaide, they were ready to start their _____-owe’en scare fest. Hoping to make quite a _____-cle of himself, Casper drove the car straight into an on-coming _____ train. What fun and mayhem! Then they spent the rest of the night scaring the costumes off all the children, especially those who were _____-ding too much candy. Finally, they topped the evening off with frozen treats at Casket Robbins i-_____. shop. When the song “Ghost Story” by _____ Underwood came on the radio, Dybbuk just had to sing along. Underwood _____ was like an obsession with Dybbuk – ever since she was in high s-_____.
