

The hayride driver is getting very frustrated. The truck has poor traction on dirt (white squares), so it can only make turns on grass (gray squares). And the boss says the grass is too slow to go straight across, so the truck must always make a turn on each grass square – to the left or to the right. What’s more, the driver cannot go across more than three grass squares consecutively. And the hayride must not cross its own path, since that would confuse people. Help the driver design a route through the farm that visits all four attractions – passing through at least one letter square of each – and returns to the starting point.

After all that work, the driver is informed that the farm has run out of hay, so the Hay Ride will just be called “Ride.” In a rage, the driver storms off, muttering something about _____.
