THE LEGEND OF ZELDA

Princess Zelda and the Kingdom of Hyrule have found themselves, once again, under threat of attack from the evil Ganondorf. He must be stopped from finding the Triforce and taking over the world! Hyrule's fate is in your hands.

To defeat Ganondorf you must travel to five temples: the Forest Temple, the Fire Temple, the Water Temple, the Shadow Temple and the Spirit Temple. Within each temple lies a dungeon of devious puzzles which you must solve to move forward. But you do not need to face Ganondorf unaided. Zelda hands you a bag of SMALL KEYS which will help you on your quest. Each Key will be used exactly once in one of the five Temples. If you get stuck, try leaving that Temple and revisiting it later as the path may be clearer when there are fewer Keys remaining.

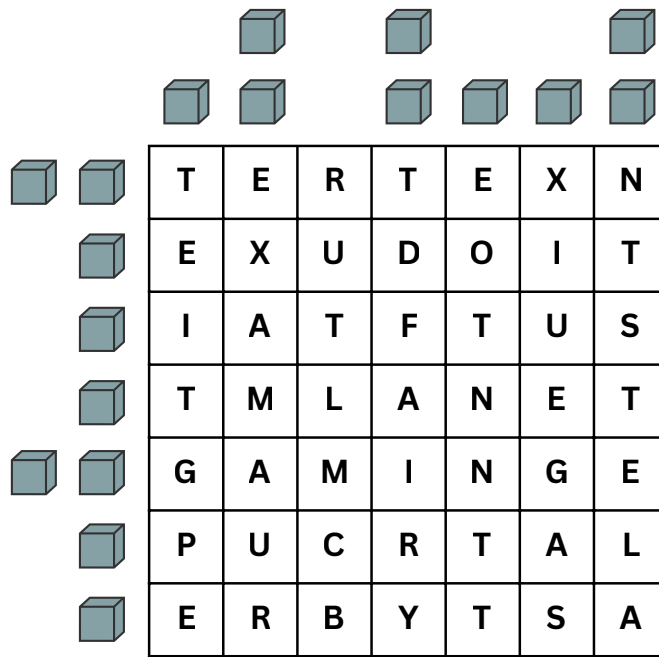

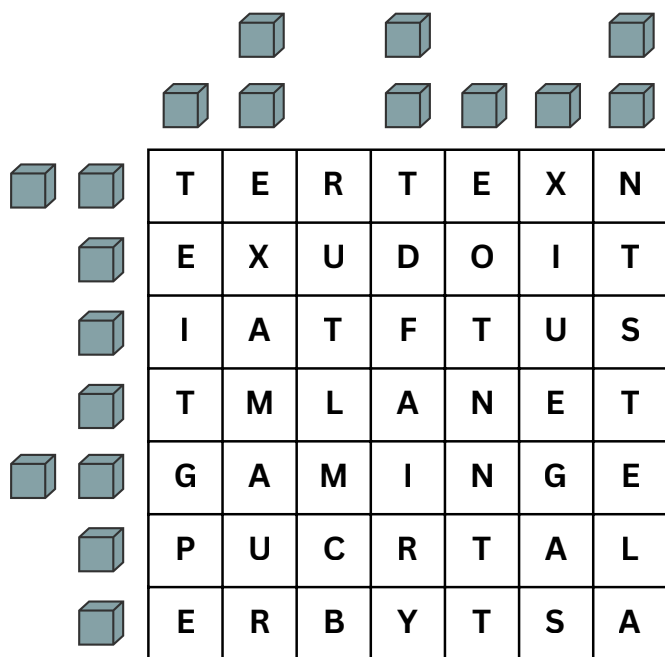

Emerging from the Lost Woods, you find yourself at the Forest Temple. In front of you are nine mysterious blocks which must be placed in the right positions. But where should they go? Out of the corner of your eye, you spot some writing carved into the temple wall:

*Amidst the forest, find the trees
By reading past the thirteen keys.
Then go and place one block beside
Each site where those nine trees reside.
Each must lie flush against its tree;
They cannot "reach" diag'nally.*

The blocks have a strange, magnetic field around them which prevents them from being placed next to each other, even diagonally. Some helpful markers on the edges of the forest indicate how many blocks there are in that row/column.

Two copies of this grid are provided in case it is helpful when solving.

You finally make it up to the top of Death Mountain and find yourself at the Fire Temple. Here Ganondorf has imprisoned many of the Gorons. You stumble over a rock and drop your bag of Keys in the fire, causing some of them to expand as they burn, char and turn to ash. But you quickly realize this may not be a bad thing, as now your Keys are the right size for the cages. If you can just spot what they have in common with the Gorons you should be able to set them free.

I need a feature to look more like Elvis  SARGOHMAA	I'm storing my best rocks for safekeeping  ETONYXIA	I require an additional payment  MOLTENUKE	I enjoy taking showers  WRATHXE	I wish I'd seen it when you swung your sword  DARSUKA

You don your iron boots and sink to the bottom of Lake Hylia to enter the Water Temple. Your bag of Keys is soaking wet, but it looks like you have everything you need... if only the locks weren't so far away. Perhaps there's a recently-acquired item in your inventory that can help.

You found the Hookshot!
It's a spring-loaded chain that you can cast out to hook things.
Find a  to aim at, then fire
the hookshot to be pulled in.

SHADOW TEMPLE

From the graveyard, you make your way down to the Shadow Temple. As you descend, your feelings of unease increase – everything about this Temple seems twisted and wrong. Strange, incomprehensible messages are scrawled all over the walls. If you can just unravel these tortured clues, you're sure you can find something that will work with your Keys.

ITEMS

Lens of Truth

A magic lens that reveals hidden wonders.
Use it to see the truth beneath an illusion.

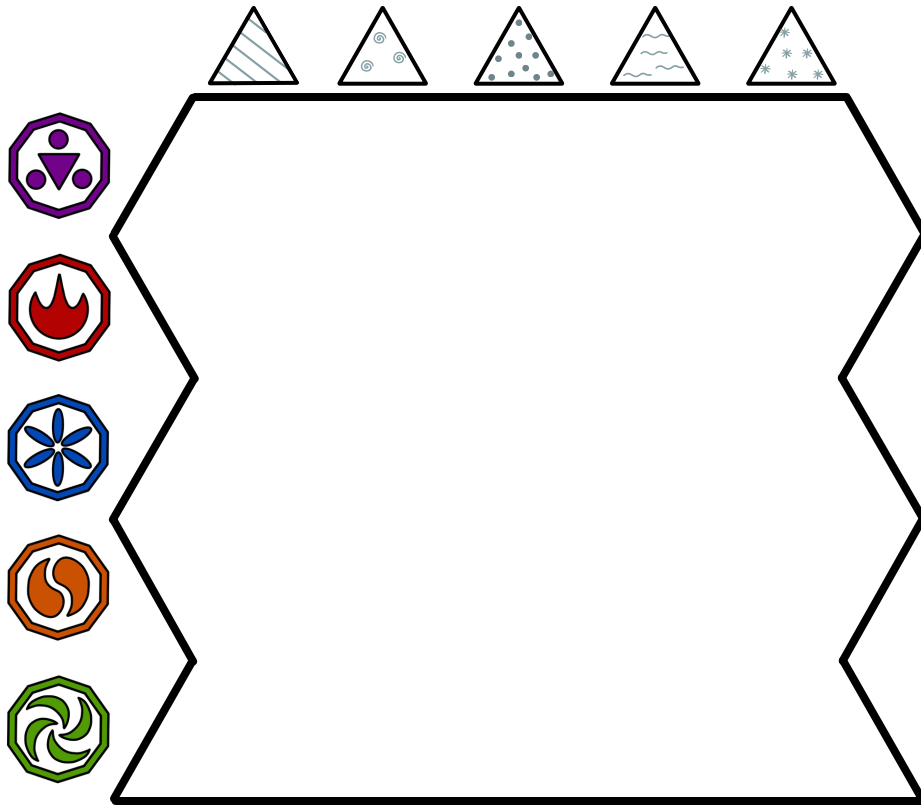

The dungeon before you contains a network of rooms, each containing a hidden mirror. Six of your Keys look useful here – they fit exactly across the width of the dungeon. You know the secret to escaping lies in the locations of those mirrors. By strategically placing items from your inventory around the edge and noticing where their reflections appear, you are able to glean some information about their locations. You're sure you've done it correctly, but somehow the answer seems wrong...

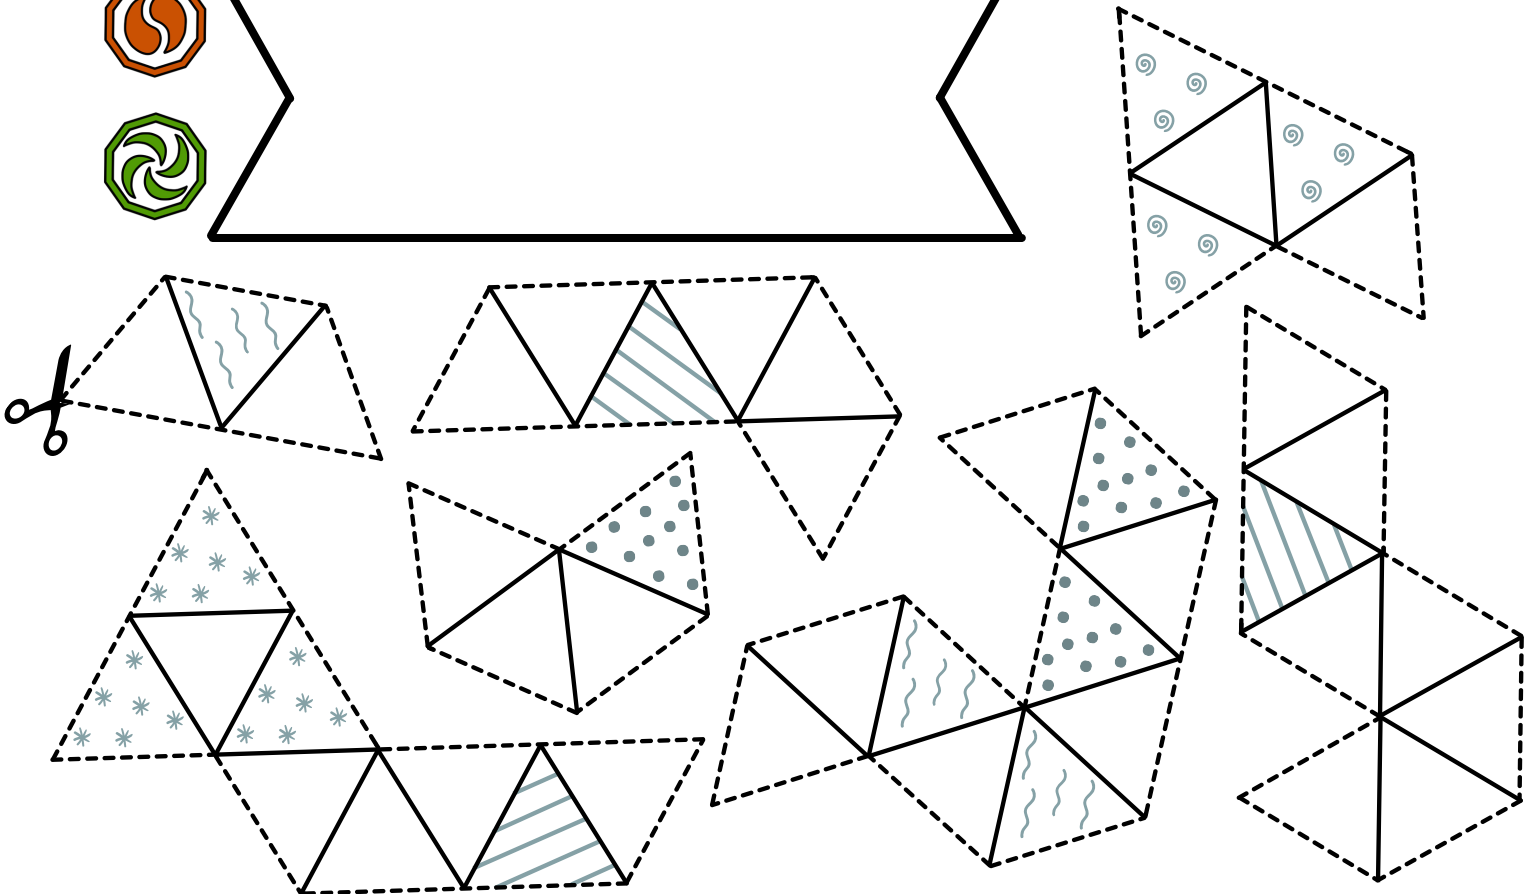

- Each region contains exactly one diagonal mirror placed in a single cell.
- The numbers next to the items indicate how many mirrors its reflection bounces off before reaching its partner.
- Each mirror reflects at least one item.
- Reflection lines can cross each other.
- Mirrors are double-sided.

With all the Temples conquered, you arrive, exhausted, at the final challenge. You are now ready to face Ganondorf in the final battle. By combining power, wisdom and courage into a familiar shape, evil can be vanquished. How did you and Zelda defeat Ganondorf and save Hyrule?

Now that Hyrule has been restored, it's time to hide the legendary blade until it is needed again. You find a hiding spot in the garden outside the Temple of Time. If needed again, just remember...

Resolutions

As 2025 draws to a close, you consider perhaps it's time to start your list of New Year's resolutions. There's a lot to put on that list! First and foremost, it's time to get rid of all that accumulated "stuff." You've got twelve rooms in your house; each one contains something or other that needs to go! (Although it appears to be a random arrangement of things, the puzzler in you is all but certain it is not.) Getting rid of stuff is hard, but you make a plan: As soon as you see it, you throw it out!

And then there are your goals of getting more exercise, calling your dear mother more often, spending less time on YouTube... Your list is getting longer and longer, and it seems like an uphill battle. We all know what the real challenge is with any New Year's to-do list...
