

Jonathan was watching the ships set out to sea. "Ah," he thought, "that must be my friend Gulliver going on his grand voyage." Jonathan got out his spyglass and noticed a group of sailors on deck waving flags around and looking out to the other side of the bay. One was waving with both arms, but the others with seemingly just one. He tried to focus more closely on the sailors but found it hard to keep his instrument steady.

What message was Gulliver sending his wife on shore?
